___ Background

I'm Sher, a product designer at Virgin Media O2. I focus on simplifying complex digital systems and shaping experiences so they feel clear and intuitive.

Before moving into product, I worked across visual and creative roles at Mercer, ao.com and Practical Publishing. That background gave me a strong sense of structure but over time I found myself more drawn to shaping the logic behind the interface.

I care about making complex products feel simple and working within system constraints to design experiences that actually make sense for the people that use them every day.

___ Out of office

I'm usually snowboarding or climbing (reading a route before committing), making terrariums (working within tight constraints, with some yoga (slow down) and a lot of eating in between.

I'll happily plan a trip around one restaurant because I can't help noticing what makes a place feel well looked after.
